How to Use Emoji

To use these emoji, you can directly copy and paste them into the editor of any social media platform, or wherever you want to use the emoji.

Different platforms and devices display emoji in different ways. For example, Apple devices and Facebook might make them wavy, and they may be slightly rounded on Twitter. Certain country flags might not work on Windows and may just display two-letter country codes instead.

But overall, the majority of the emoji listed in this article still work cross-platform.

number to every character, emoji, or symbol.

To insert any of the emojis in HTML, for example, remove the `U+` that all the characters start with, type in the hexadecimal character reference, add an ampersand (`&`), number sign (`#`) and `x` at the front, and a semi-colon at the end.

For example `🤣` would insert a "roll on the floor" emoji in HTML. I was able to escape the character from being displayed directly by wrapping backticks around it. Without wrapping backticks around the characters, I have this: 🤪.

For Unicode characters that have decimals, especially symbols, you can insert them in HTML without adding an `x`. For example `—` gives you an em dash (—).

For emojis with more than one unicode character, you have to include all the unicode characters and combine them with semi-colon(s) for it to work.

For instance, the US flag emoji has two unicode characters – `U+1F1FA` `U+1F1F8`. `U+1F1FA` alone won't work and `U+1F1F8` alone won't work. But combining both will work – 🇺🇸. This is the code that made it work: `🇺🇸`

Same thing applies to the woman golfing emoji that has four total unicode characters – `U+1F3CC`, `U+FE0F`, `U+200D`, `U+2640`, and `U+FE0F`. None of them will work alone, but combining all of them like this `🏌️‍♀️` leads to the emoji – 🏌️‍♀️.

Learn to code for free. freeCodeCamp's open source curriculum has helped more than 40,000 people get jobs as developers.

Get started

freeCodeCamp is a donor-supported tax-exempt 501(c)(3) charity organization (United States Federal Tax Identification Number: 82-0779546)

Our mission: to help people learn to code for free. We accomplish this by creating thousands of videos, articles, and interactive coding lessons - all freely available to the public.

Donations to freeCodeCamp go toward our education initiatives, and help pay for servers, services, and staff.
